TRAFFIC FATALITIES, ACCIDENTS COSTS A GREAT NATIONAL PROBLEM

With the nation's traffic fatality rate almost back to its post-war peak, and not only the number of accidents but the cost of accidents rising each month, the American automobile owners are faced with a problem that only they can cure.

That this is a national problem has been signified by the National Highway Safety Conference, called by President Truman and the campaign currently being sponsored by the Advertising Council (the co-operative group of advertising leaders who produced most of the War Bond and other war-time advertising campaigns) in co-operation with the National Safety Council.

That it is a local problem is evident in the increasing number of deaths and injuries which are reported almost every week. Some idea of the trend in the number and severity of automobile accidents can be gathered from statistics just released by the interest of safety by the State Mutual Automobile Insurance Company.

All through 1945, and at a high accelerated rate after V-J Day and the termination of gasoline rationing, the number and severity of automobile accidents increased, the State Farm Mutual report points out.

This trend in the number and severity of automobile accidents has continued to increase in the first quarter of 1946, with the resumption of vacation travel this summer is not likely to slacken.

In the first quarter of 1946, the company had an increase of 51.3 per cent of claims received over the first quarter of 1945, the report shows. There were 21 percent more claims reported in January and February of this year than in November and December of 1945. In March the number was up by 5.5 percent over January and February and 7.5 more claims were paid than in any previous month in the company's history.

At the same time, the average cost of claims for automobile accidents continued to grow. For example, the average 80 percent collision claim cost 93 percent more in 1945 than it did in 1942. While in 1945 the cost of the average claim was $1,000, in 1946 it was $1,500, the highest in the history of the company.

In the first quarter of 1946 the average cost was up 18 percent over 1945. With the average car over 8 years old—with bad brakes on 1 car in 7—with thoughtless drivers "hitting it up" on worn tires, accidents involving defective equipment have more than doubled today. * * * and so in many cases, has the cost of repairing the damage to the automobile—where it is possible to make repairs. All of this in addition to an average of 950,000 people injured or killed each year in traffic accidents.

These old cars are, generally, more extensively damaged in an accident than newer models, simply because parts are worn and often rusted. For example, a rear fender on a certain make of 1941 automobile listed at $8, but because a new one was unavailable it cost more than five times the price of a new fender to repair it. The average increase in repair costs is up from 25 to 45 percent.

All of this means that even automobile owners who are protected by insurance will have to pay more—because in the final essence, the cost of insurance is determined by the amount the insurance company must pay for claims. As every safety agency has pointed out, the only remedy for loss of life, loss of the use of your automobile and the penalty of higher insurance rates is—CAREFUL DRIVING. The good results with the average motorist. Unless every automobile driver drives more carefully, the report concludes, America will reap the greatest toll of human life in history this year, and financial loss will hit the pocketbook of every car owner.

TO GRADUATE 37 TOMORROW NIGHT

The Grayling High School 1946 graduating class of 37 students returned Sunday in time for the Graduate Services at the Michigan Memorial Church, following a skip day which started last Friday.

They left Grayling by bus for Detroit where they boarded the Steamer "Greater Detroit" for a cruise to Buffalo, arriving Saturday morning. Following a full day sight-seeing around Buffalo and Niagara Falls, they reboarded ship for the return trip to Detroit, arriving there Sunday morning for the return trip to Grayling.

The class entered the church to the strains of "America—The Beautiful" and heard Rev. R. C. Puffer give a sermon, entitled, "Synchronizing Religion and Education."

Wednesday evening, the annual Class Day program was held in the High School Auditorium. Richard K. Nelson gave the Salutatory and President's Address, followed by A. J. Charron, who read the Class History. The Class Prophet was given by Dale Burns and Dick Penty, while H. Small read the Class Poem. Helen Madsen gave the Class Will, and Irene Anthony and Dwight Reava made the Giffattory. Gloria Feldhauser gave the Valedictory Address to end the program. The Glee Club, directed by Mrs. Roy Milnes, entertained the crowd during the program with several numbers.

The Commencement Program is scheduled for 8 o'clock Friday evening at the High School Auditorium. The Invocation will be given by Rev. Svend Holm; then the Glee Club, under the direction of Mrs. Roy Milnes, is to sing, then the Commencement Address is next on the program—"High C's Within for the High Seas With-out"—by Dr. Howard R. Towne of the First Congregational Church of Traverse City. Following a vocal number by a double quartet, the diplomas will be presented by Supt. Frank L. Bond. The Benediction will be given by Rev. Holm.

Grayling Girl Rated Twelfth in Class

Barbara Borchers, freshman from Grayling, was among the 12 highest ranking students at piano at Central Michigan College who were chosen to present a recital May 27 in the college auditorium. Barbara will play "Submerged Cathedral" by Debussy and "Malgarena" by Lecocq.

The program is under the direction of Miss Mary Lu Reeder of the Music Department at the college.

County Given Slap On Back

In a recent letter to Emil Giegling, Chairman of the County War Relocation Council, Crawford County a real slap on the back.

The letter read as follows: "As the Michigan United War Fund approaches its honorable discharge from service, we have taken a re-survey of its operation. That survey shows a proud fact for Crawford County.

In each of the three annual campaigns in which Michigan raised her part of the national funds to finance the war charities other than the Red Cross, Crawford County went over the top, exceeded its quota, gave all it was asked to give, and then gave more.

This is a testimonial to the patriotism and the intelligence of Crawford County citizenship and to the quality of leadership that entered during the war emergency, which makes a place in history.

We speak for Michigan as a whole when we send you and your fellow citizens enthusiastic congratulations, and declare our pride in you.

We send also the heartfelt appreciation of those who, serving during the war emergency, have benefitted by your splendid cooperation.

The letter was signed by A. L. Miller, president of the Michigan United War Fund, Inc.

SEEK TO SOLVE FOOD SHORTAGE

The East Michigan Tourist Association, seeking to forestall meat shortages in the resort areas this summer, has started a survey throughout the recreational counties in this section of the state.

Results of the survey, announced by Frank Davis EMTA secretary-manager, will be turned over to OPA officials.

He asked EMTA county councils to call immediate emergency meetings to consult with other civic organizations in making the survey and to estimate population increases in the affected area during the summer months, and to urge the other local organizations also to send their findings to the OPA regional director at Cleveland.

Davis has already requested relaxation of meat slaughtering restrictions on behalf of the EMTA membership. In a letter to OPA he pointed out that "the present restriction, if continued, will work a very serious hardship on the people of this section of Michigan whose main livelihood is derived directly from the tourist industry."

Expect A Million

"A tremendous influx of tourists into Michigan is expected to start next month," he wrote. "I estimate that approximately one million visitors will enter this part of the state during their vacations. These people must be fed."

Resort operators throughout the area fear that a serious meat shortage will develop if present OPA meat slaughtering restrictions are continued.

Shortages in the Tawas area at the height of last year's tourist season forced the OPA to issue emergency rations. Davis said his organization seeks to eliminate such shortages by proper advance planning.

Meat packers of this area are allowed to slaughter only as much as they did in 1944. 1944 production was pared down from 1941 production, a typical tourist year. The survey will be conducted through EMTA county councils throughout the resort areas. In a letter to all council presidents as state secretaries, Davis urged immediate action in an effort to obtain relaxation of meat quotas during the months of June, July, August and September.

Former Grayling High Graduate Honored

Word has been received that Mathilda Poley Bishop, who teaches at Central Michigan College, has been elected president of the Northern Ohio Alumni Chapter of Pi Lambda Theta. She was installed recently at an impressive ceremony.

The Grayling graduate is the daughter of Mrs. Elizabeth Poley, one of the pioneer residents of Grayling. She graduated from Grayling High with the class of 1914.

During her high school years she has done outstanding work as an editor in Ohio. Grayling friends are pleased to hear of the honor conferred upon her.

Elmer Ostrander Laid To Rest

Services were held Saturday, May 25, at the Michelson Memorial Church at 2 p. m. for Elmer Ostrander, who died June 2, 1945, at his home in Grayling.

He was a long time member of the Grange and an honorary member at the time of his death. Surviving him are three brothers and one sister and their families, who were present for the funeral: Charles Ostrander and Mr. and Mrs. Roy Scott, of Roscommon; Lewis, with daughter and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Ostrander, of Hillman; Arthur of Williamsburg; and Mrs. Kate Waldron of Glen Arbor. Also present were Mrs. Waldron's daughter, Mrs. Lee Richardson; a brother-in-law, Frank Whipple; and daughter, Mrs. Russell Cripps—all of Lansing, Mich.

Cemetery Notes

This past week-end has been a very busy one. Saturday and Sunday a steady stream of visitors called to confer with Supt. Otis Cook regarding the improvement of their lots, preparatory to Decoration Day, and upkeep for the season of 1946.

As gubernatorial candidate, Colonel Raymond J. Kelly, former State and National Legion Commander, addressed the Grayling Kiwanis Club last Wednesday on the Conservation Department and the resort business. Pictured to the right of the Republican nominee seeker is Kiwanis President Carl W. Peterson and Club Director Earl R. Burns.

PARADE, LEAGUE OPENER GAME ON MEMORIAL DAY PROGRAM

Local Scouts Attend Camporee

Three hundred Boy Scouts from thirty-nine Patrols camped at the Gladwin State Game Refuge from Friday evening through Sunday afternoon at the Woodland Trails District Camporee. This is the largest attendance since it was instituted four years ago.

Although it rained very hard all day Saturday, very little rain fell at the Camporee to prevent any of the events taking place.

This year, instead of the usual contests, a new and interesting "Adventure Trail" as planned by Scout Leaders headed by John Moore and Charles Schmitt, of Midland. All members of the Patrols took part to the best of their abilities. Events consisted of Judging, Knife and Hatchet, Signaling, Archery, First Aid, Compass, Observation, Nature and Obstacle Course. They were also rated in their proficiency in Campcraft and Woodcraft—Equipment, Safety, and Sanitation, Cooking, Camping, Skill, Organization of Patrol, etc.

The Camporee was sponsored jointly by the Midland Lions and Rotary Clubs. "Good Turn" pocket pieces were presented as souvenirs at the conclusion of the Camporee.

Protestant services were held at the Camporee by Rev. John Scott of the Gladwin Methodist Church. Catholic Scouts and Leaders were taken to Gladwin by bus for services.

The presentation of awards was made Sunday afternoon by Robert W. Davies, District Executive, in a colorful ceremony.

The thirty-two Grayling Boy Scouts who attended the Camporee were taken to Gladwin in cars driven by George Granger, John Peterson, Jerome Kessler, Hans Peterson, Robert Strong and Frank Bond, accompanied by Eugene Lawler, Scout Master. Mr. Lawler stayed with the Grayling Scouts both Friday and Saturday nights. Supt. Frank Bond and City Manager George Granger were present Friday and Saturday nights respectively.

The Grayling Scouts won four second prizes and one first prize in the outdoor activity competition. They returned to Grayling late Sunday afternoon via Oscar Goss and the school bus.

Kiwanis Club Notes

Eugene Lawler, Scoutmaster of the local Troop and director of the new Grayling summer recreation program, was the speaker at this week's luncheon of the Kiwanis Club. The program was under the direction of John H. Peterson.

Mr. Lawler covered the past activities of the Scout Troop, including the Camporee at the Gladwin Game Refuge last week-end and the plans for the future activities that the Troop has in mind.

He discussed the coming summer recreation program, which will include a playground, beach and athletic field endeavors. He pointed out several ways in which the Grayling Kiwanis Club could boost and help the program on its way.

Kelly Pounds Home His Point

Behind the two-hit pitching of J. Moore, the Boyne City squad pounded out 8 hits off two Grayling hurlers to sew up the contest by a 2 to 1 score.

Bill Muhr started on the mound for Grayling and was tagged for seven hits and one run in three innings. He was replaced by Phil Kevay, who gave up but one hit, but was also scored on once.

J. Moore hurled the full route for Boyne and struck out 7 men, issued 3 passes and hit one batsman. Kevay whiffed 8, Muhr 6. Neither Grayling chucker issued a base on balls.

Grimstad drove out a double, while Bud Caid got the only out safely for Grayling. Caid singled and reached second when Bill Muhr's grounder was muffed by O. Moore, and scored on errors by VanCamp and Ryan.

Boyne scored first in the second inning on successful singles by Miller, VanCamp, Whale and Ryan. In the 7th inning after two were out, Delaney singled, stole second and came in on an error by Campbell.

The championship game was the windup of the high school athletic careers of Ted Bennett, Bud Caid, Bill Muhr, Mike Mathewson, Dick Penty, Emery Craft and was the final baseball game for Harry Miller, Harry Miller and Jimmy Granger; Children's Day program.

Eleven Million Acres in Tree Farms

Tree farms have passed the 11 million acre mark, only four years after the program was inaugurated with the dedication of the Clemons Tree Farm, near Montezuma, Washington. The movement is sponsored by forest industries to aid in perpetuating the nation's forest wealth.

Despite rigid requirements for membership, which include maintenance of good protection against fire and harvesting by continuous yield methods, or timber-cropping, there are now 945 tree farms encompassing a total of 11,134,950.09 acres.

In the West, where the movement began, there are 138 tree farms totaling 4,286,547.32 acres. The state of Washington leads with 41 tree farms, while Montana and Idaho are tied for second place with 24 each. Oregon has 23 and California 21. Wisconsin joined the movement last year. In the South, tree farms number 807, comprising 6,868,402.77 acres.

Alabama leads the South with 303. Arkansas is in second place with 257. Other states are Mississippi, 143; Texas, 90; North Carolina, 14; Florida, South Carolina, Tennessee, West Virginia, Maryland and New Jersey inaugurated the program last year.

The background of this chart shows a dense stand of second growth Douglas fir on a Western tree farm on land from which harvests of old growth have been taken on a continuous yield basis.

Notes and Comments from Washington

Our Present Food Shortage
Errors of judgment, bungling miscalculations, and conflicting policies on the part of armchair planners in Washington are the principal cause of our present-day food shortages. The explanation is about as follows:
First: The demand for food in 1946 was under-estimated by our armchair planners, because they over-estimated the number that would be unemployed this Spring. They said our unem-

VETERANNEWS

From the OFFICE OF VETERANS' AFFAIRS

LANSING

As the time interval increases, the readjustment of veterans is accompanied by an increase in problems classed as non-overmental in nature and a decrease in questions and problems involving Federal agencies, reports from centers to Lansing show.

General Omar N. Bradley, Federal Administrator of Veterans Affairs, anticipated these non-governmental problems early in January 1946, when he said: "Nowhere is there greater opportunity to help these men and women than in the communities they left to join the forces."

Here they shall meet problems outside the fences of governmental authority. And here the community must be prepared to help them solve these problems."

Counselors and insurance panels of local veterans' affairs will be interested to know that the trend for insurance is decreasing.

The current campaign to create an interest in future security through insurance seems justified. The want of direct and workable facts about insurance is one more illustration of the need veterans often unwittingly face for sound basic information—in information that assists the individual in making better life decisions.

The local counselor and his committee can give this information which is so vital to the veteran's future.

Routine services rendered in the centers are becoming a recognized convenience. However, no one counselor can ever answer all the questions or render all the services required to meet the needs of all the veterans. The center's primary job is to explore and open all the community's doors of opportunity to its veterans.

Growth in the volume of general counseling is a very important development in services rendered in the counseling centers in the past three months. This fact emphasizes the need for an organized in-service training program to assist veterans' interviewers in studying and improving their counseling procedures.

CHINA'S FAMINE CORRIDOR... Chinese lad is shown carrying his starving mother from their Hunan farm into the village of Kuang Ping, in the heart of Hunan's famine corridor. Hunan sustained greater losses of men and material than any other province. Estimates are that 577,000 persons were killed, 1,500,000 wounded, 945 buildings destroyed and 642 animals killed. Starvation is even worse today.

HERE'S TO HEALTH

Tests Used in Finding TB

School children in some communities in the United States are given tuberculin tests every year. These tests are an aid in the great nationwide hunt for unknown cases of tuberculosis. These tests do not, by themselves, reveal the presence of the disease, but they indicate the need of further study of the patient and help in the search for the unrecognized case from which infection originated.

There are, it is estimated, at least 500,000 cases of tuberculosis in the country, more than half of which are unknown to health authorities. Since tuberculosis is a communicable disease, these unknown cases constitute a serious public health threat. A person with active tuberculosis, unaware that he has the disease, is risking his own life and may be spreading the disease in the community.

In order to find these unknown cases, mass chest X-ray surveys are advocated by the Tuberculosis Control Division of the U. S. Public Health Service and by the National Tuberculosis Association and its state and local affiliates. The X-ray is the easiest way to find pulmonary tuberculosis in its early stages when there are no outward symptoms.

While children of the elementary school age seldom have pulmonary tuberculosis, and therefore X-ray examinations are not practical, if they have come in contact with the disease, the TB germs may be present in their bodies. The tuberculin test reveals the presence of these germs and provides a lead in tracking down the source of infection.

Tuberculin reacts positively only to the germs when they have entered the body. If the test is negative, that is the end of the matter. If it is positive, then an X-ray picture is taken to find out if the child has healthy lungs. If the X-ray shows that the lungs are not diseased, then members of his family and other persons with whom he may have come in close contact are urged to have chest X-rays. This procedure frequently leads to the discovery of hitherto unknown cases of tuberculosis.

Tuberculin tests are also used to help the doctor in diagnosing doubtful cases of tuberculosis. Sometimes an X-ray reveals suspicious-looking shadows on the lungs, which may be caused by tuberculosis or may be due to several other causes. The test is then given and, if it is negative, the doctor knows his patient has not TB.

Appendicitis will be discussed in the next article.
(This article is presented by the Michigan Tuberculosis Association in the interest of better health.)

IT'S SIMPLE enough to go into the story of Memorial Day. Why we observe it  with what reverence we gather at the monument to the unknown soldier. But if our reverence ends there, we've accomplished nothing and all the fighting that's been done has been in vain; all that's been fought for becomes a dream, still in the far distant future. If we remember that the quest for peace does not end the day the last shot is fired, that we haven't achieved the glowing goal of PEACE with the end of hostilities, we shall have learned a masterful lesson. Let us resolve this day to take part in the peace plan for the future, to be aware of our government's attitudes and actions.

State of the Nation

Anyone who conducts a business successfully in the face of the growing mountain of governmental controls, must have a corps of lawyers at his elbow. An individual with a good idea and the willingness to risk his savings to back his idea, is not enough. He can not go ahead except by the grace of countless bureaus and agencies staffed with hopelessly confused little bureaucrats. Every move he makes must be paved with priorities, allocations, certificates, and directives. If he does manage to run the gauntlet and come out with an article the public needs and wants, he can not sell it unless the price is approved by a government agent acting under the authority of an unintelligible formula.

Such is the state of the nation. Paradoxically, larger industries able to hire lawyers, and survive the present crazy system if anyone can, are the most vociferous in their condemnation of the situation. They realize that they were once small and they want to preserve the kind of country which keeps alive the hope of the beginner. They realize too that if a crop of healthy small business is not developing continually, big business and big government will gradually destroy opportunities and freedom for the individual.

As the president of one leading oil company asserts: "Business and industry to succeed must serve the public. This is best done through competition. To have competition we must preserve at all costs an environment in which the little man can continue to challenge the big fellow for public favor. Faith in competitive enterprise has guided my life."

We can not restore individual opportunity in this country unless we reject government by decree, which is the kind of government we have now as far as business is concerned, and which is the kind we shall have tomorrow for all of us if a resurgence of confidence in independent action does not appear soon.

state by state, in the magazine's June issue.

Last season the bottom literally dropped out of the pheasant supply all across the country. Even such outstanding ringneck states as Minnesota, Iowa, and South Dakota reported a decrease.

Now the experts predict that things are going to be different—they point out that old John Ringneck is a tough bird and it takes more than a year or two of hard sledding to send him down the Road of No Return. Give him a break in weather and a place to live and nest and it won't be too long before sportsmen will forget all about past disappointments.

Bad weather comes in for most of the blame for the pheasant depression. This began in 1943 with the heaviest spring rainfall in years. The next year, wasn't much better and by the fall of 1944 some states began to see the handwriting on the wall. In the spring and summer of 1945, weather conditions over the entire north half of the United States were the most unfavorable in years so far as pheasant production was concerned.

Clean farming, with its destruction of fence rows, brush patches, and other game cover to make more room for crops, ranks second as a cause of the pheasant shortage. Illegal shooting was another cause; so was predation by roving dogs, opossums, raccoons, cats, crows and other natural enemies of the ringneck.

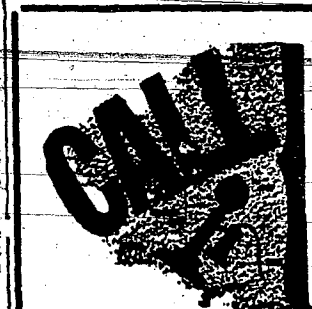

Game authorities in all states where the pheasant normally thrives are adopting radical measures to insure this popular bird's comeback. New game farms have been established, breeding and stocking programs have been greatly expanded, farmers are being urged to leave their woodlots ungrazed and their fence rows uncleaned; also to leave narrow strips of grass around the edges of their hay fields to provide nesting cover for three birds.

Other activities include more extensive and conservation, increased predator control, and wherever

The pheasant is coming back! Victim of a decline which will cause 1945 to go down in hunting history as the year of the Great Pheasant Slum, this most important of all game birds in the northern half of the United States is going to be plentiful again—and his gladcome revival will take place sooner than most sportsmen now believe.

Such is the conclusion arrived at by Ben East, field editor of Outdoor Life magazine and noted authority on wildlife, as the result of a survey which covered every state in the ringneck belt. East reports his findings in detail.

State of Colorado is doing toward maintaining the great trout fishing in that state. A summing up of Colorado's trout conservation program states "her 18 hatcheries and rearing stations— are to send 1,000,000 trout of 7 inches upward into (Colorado) fishing waters this year. An expansion program already started is to INCREASE the state's plantings to between 2,500,000 and 3,000,000 oversize trout annually.

Out there they are trying to preserve the fishing of that state. Why can not and why does not Michigan do the same? We have a Conservation Department, too. And conservation is more than conversation.

Here, as in Colorado, only, we believe more so, keeping the fishing A-1 is a big factor in maintaining and increasing the flow of summer vacationists to the state.

We have our hopes that Crawford County will never come to the point where its lakes will be fenced in and the public barred from access to them by the glaring sign "Private—Keep Out."

We have always looked on the streams and lakes of a state as public domain—for the recreation and enjoyment of the people—that no one person or group of persons has the right to, by buying property along the streams or lakes, close them to other people. The great strides Michigan has made in conservation are due to the fishing and hunting licenses bought by the average Tom, Dick, and Harry—you, me, and the rest of us. We are the outdoors enthusiasts, REAL devotees to an unspoiled outdoors.

We believe, among other things, that Michigan's Great Outdoors must be kept for the generations ahead as well as for the enjoyment of the people of today.

Sometimes we think, as we get out into the forests, or along the lakes of Crawford County: "After the Great Architect made this beautiful Outdoors of Michigan He threw the plans away—for here only is the beauty of the streams, lakes, forests and hills without a flaw."

Northern Michigan appeals as a Vacation Land—Let us keep it so. Its main allure is its outdoors—and in the summertime so many of the folks who come here are folks who come to fish. More and better fishing will keep them coming here.

Release First Book On Resort Business

The Conservation Institute, Tourist and Resort Division, Michigan State College, has released the first of a series of pamphlets which are to aid persons in the tourist and resort industry. The first pamphlet is entitled "Soups", and contains instructions and recipes for the preparation of soups in quantities sufficient to serve fifty or more. It will be of particular interest to those who are providing food service to large numbers of tourists and vacationists, church or lodge groups. A number of pamphlets in this series will be prepared to deal with other features of menu and the more general problems of management and control in quantity food service. One of the pamphlets is available for inspection at the Avalanche office and they may be had free of charge by contacting the County Agent, L. W. Barnes.

Weeding Top Task For Home Gardens

June, in the garden, means a little weeding, a little watering, a little dusting and spraying and lots of weeding. All added together, it makes one of the busiest and most important months in the entire gardening year. Jack Rose, Michigan State College home gardening specialist, makes these suggestions:

June 1-10—Keep planting the spring garden and start to plant some of the fall garden. If tomatoes, peppers, eggplant, and tender flower annuals have not been set out, do so now. Make second seeding of corn and beans. Sow lima beans, pumpkin, melons, squash and cucumbers. Plant late potatoes. Sow seed of cabbage, broccoli, cauliflower, and brussels sprouts for fall crops.

Dahlias may be set out any time during June. Continue making gladiolus plantings at ten day intervals up to the last of June.

June 10-20—Start dusting the sweet corn with 5% DDT or rotenone to control corn borer. Make five applications at 5-day intervals. Keep squash plants dusted with rotenone to control vine borer.

Watch beans for Mexican bean beetle. Spray or dust with rotenone, covering top and underside of leaves for control. Dust or spray with rotenone mixture of 5% DDT and copper dusts or Bordeaux mixture.

Pinch back chrysanthemums to get bushy growth and abundance of bloom. Stake delphinium, hollyhocks and other tall perennials.

June 20-30—Stop cutting asparagus. Apply 10 pounds of 10-6-4 or other high nitrogen fertilizer per 100 root row. Watch for and remove suckers on lilacs, roses, and any other grafted trees or shrubs.

Water plants during dry spells. Be particularly careful to water newly set evergreens. Water the lawn thoroughly, soaking soil to depth of 3 or 4 inches. Don't just sprinkle.

Battle weeds. June is the month to whip the weed problem. Weeds rob garden plants of food and moisture. Hoe them out before they get hard but green. Use of the weeds. This is a good time to use one of the 2, 4-D sprays to destroy lawn weeds, too. Be careful not to get 2, 4-D on garden plants, however.

State In Land Business 100 Years

The state has been in the land business for more than 100 years, but evolution of the lands office from a sales agency to a management service came only after its coordination with the conservation agencies in the State Department of Conservation, now marking its 25th anniversary.

For 80 years after creation of the state land office in 1843, the agency's big job was sales, to encourage settlement in the state. There were primary school lands, agricultural college lands, university lands, swamp lands, asylum lands, and salt spring lands given to the state by act of Congress, all to be sold to finance the young state's educational institutions and promote development of new areas. Together these lands totaled about twelve million acres, more than the area of the Northern Peninsula. The job of selling them is done. Only a few thousand acres, of little value, remain on the books.

But the job of the land agency is bigger than ever. Except for the readily resold tax-delinquent lands of southern Michigan, managed separately by the state land board, the lands division of the Conservation Department keeps all records of state land holdings. It has nearly five million acres to keep tab on, and is likely to have as much to take care of for a long time to come.

When lands affairs were bro't into the Conservation Department, posting of some land records had been neglected as long as 26 years. Today the records are up to date, and modern methods such as use of addressograph machines for listing three-quarters of a million descriptions for one annual statement, is keeping them that way.

Besides its staggering clerical chores, the lands division has steady routine work in land appraisals, purchases and sales. It has on the market now about 25,000 acres and several thousand planted lots in the northern 47 counties for sale to the first applicant. This is all tax-reverted property that can be used profitably in private ownership and is not both suitable and necessary for inclusion in state forests, parks, fishing or hunting access sites or other public use areas managed by the Conservation Department. At the same time the division is appraising and purchasing lands suitable and necessary for public recreation, from deer yards in the North to park lands near Detroit.

The great periodic turnover of submarginal lands has practically ceased. For years these lands yielded no tax revenues as they went through successive tax delinquency sales. Now 87 percent of the state's holdings are tax-reverted lands which have begun to earn their keep (the 10 cents an acre tax for local government units) as part of the conservation program that supports Michigan's outdoor recreation and tourist industry, now valued in the hundreds of millions of dollars annually.

Reservation to the state of mineral rights in lands sold by the state since 1909 has contributed to the state's cash income from oil and gas development of $6,770,000 in the last 19 years. None of the land is idle. Sales of timber, sand and gravel, and grazing rights contribute a limited but steady income.

Best index to the stabilization of land affairs, after a century of settlement and development, is found in Northern Michigan, where every township and county has a land use planning committee of local residents. Their local recommendations coincide so well with state-wide plans there is little doubt that Michigan's land affairs have "come of age" at last.

Mrs. Guy E. Wheaton of Lyons, Michigan, at two o'clock Sunday afternoon, May 26. The single-ring service was read by Rev. Svend Holm at the home of Mrs. Herman Doroh. Snapdragons, carnations and peonies were used for the occasion. Twelve relatives and friends were present at the ceremony.

In spite of very dry weather this month, our shade trees and our green lanes are coming along fine. We are having difficulty securing fertilizer; the McGowan Hardware Company of West Branch very kindly supplied us one-half ton of fertilizer.

During the past week many beautiful markers have arrived and all have been set on firm concrete foundations. All of which add to the beauty of our cemetery. One of our main supporters called to advise that he would purchase a power motor and lend it to us for the summer, provided we could locate one. We have corresponded with several manufacturers, but so far with no success.

Flowers and potted plants will soon be arriving in great numbers to be placed on graves for Decoration Day, and we are hoping that this year we will be free from frost, such as ruined most of our flowers last Decoration Day. We are anticipating even a much larger crowd of visitors this Decoration Day.

To those who prefer to care for their own lots, we request that they turn off the water when they are through watering, as all our water supply is on meter; then, too, due to limited supply of water, we must conserve all that we possibly can.

Among our visitors this past week were Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Wells, Mr. and Mrs. Ron Goddard, of Ithaca, New York; Mrs. Campbell of Mt. Pleasant; S. W. Meistrup of Detroit; and the daughters of the late Mr. and Mrs. Victor Salling. We are providing Mr. Cook with a registration book for the purpose of registering the names of our out of town visitors.

Respectfully submitted,
Cemetery Committee.

"Crossroads" Support Unit to View Atomic Bomb Tests

Four of the ship-types in the Support unit of the Joint Task Force are shown below. The ships represent the major vessels which will carry the observers and technicians for the test. The Support Fleet will be anchored about ten miles distant from Bikini Atoll, and will observe the actual bombing, and then make the necessary tests on the ships when the area has been declared safe.

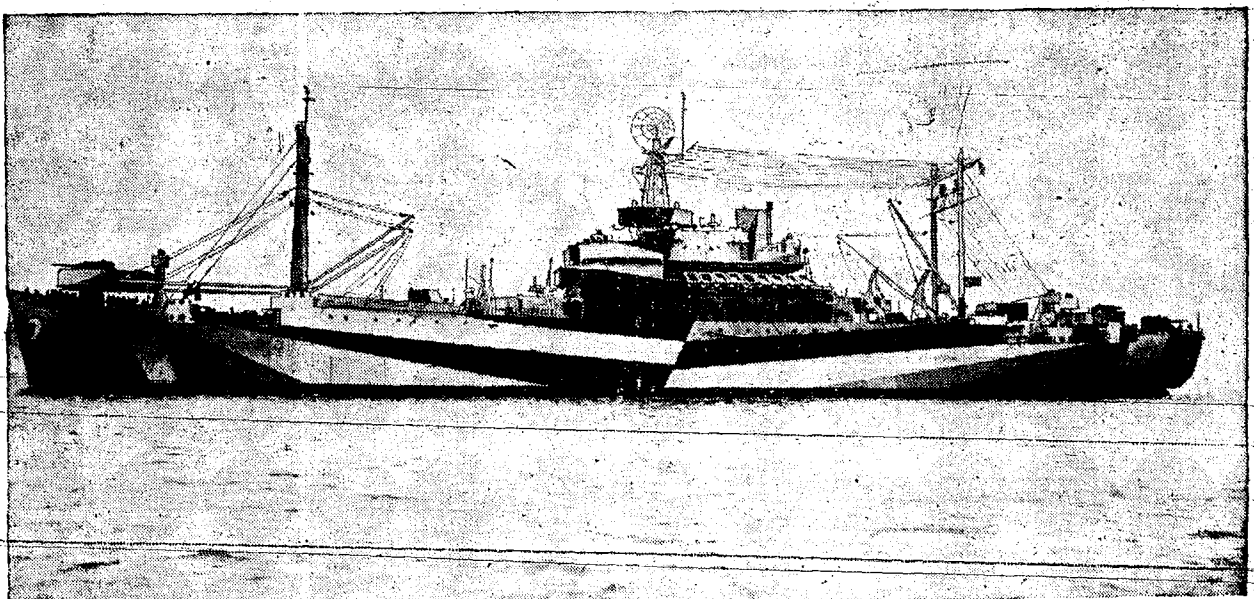

GALLERY for the observers will be ships such as this transport, the USS Wharton. The Wharton, and other transports carried troops to all fronts during the war, and carried the assault troops to invasions in the European, Mediterranean, and Pacific areas. Since the end of the war, the transports have been bringing home the veterans of the Pacific.

HOME for the planes of the support group which will observe and record the tests is the aircraft carrier USS Shangri-La, named in honor of the carrier Hornet, which carried the planes that first bombed Tokyo. The carrier commenced her combat operations with the Okinawa campaign, and went on to strike at Kyushu, Honshu, Hokkaido, and other Japanese home island targets. The Shangri-La aircraft are credited with damaging the ex-Jap battleship Nagato, one of the target ships for the test.

FLAGSHIP for the Support Unit will be the Amphibious Force Flagship USS Mount McKinley. The vessel, commissioned in May, 1944, was the wartime command flagship for five Pacific amphibious invasions—at Palau, Leyte Gulf, Lingayen Gulf, Luzon, and Okinawa. The Mount McKinley was the flagship of Amphibious Group Four in the occupation of Japan, and received the final report of compliance with the surrender terms on October 6, 1945. The ship will be the flagship of Vice Admiral W. H. P. Blandy, USN, Commander, Joint Task Force One, for the coming operation.

TENDER for the seaplanes of the support unit will be the seaplane tender USS Cumberland Sound, which was tender for the large patrol bombing planes during the war. During the latter part of 1945, the vessel was engaged in reconnaissance of the Tokyo area. The Cumberland Sound and the ships like her will service many of the planes to be used in observation of the results of the Atomic test.
